ABOUT WAUSAU

Wausau takes a great deal of pride in their community. Many people were born and raised there and have either stayed or returned to raise their own families. The Wausau area offers a unique combination of city living, with the country just minutes away from any doorstep. Residents enjoy the best of both worlds with four distinct seasons that offer beauty and recreation year round. Residents enjoy seasonal sports like biking, camping, fishing, horseback riding, hunting, kayaking, and skiing. A popular area amongst locals is Rib Mountain State Park which boasts landscape for year-round activities.

The city is also a premier arts community. The Center for the Visual Arts, the Grand Theater and Leigh Yawkey Woodson Art Museum, along with other organizations, have helped to promote the arts in Central Wisconsin.
